PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL BODIES.

Those commonly called Episcopalians constitute a part of the Anglican communion. This communion embraces the Church of England, the Church of Ireland, the Episcopal Church of Scotland, the Anglican Church in British North America, the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, and numerous bishoprics in India, Australia, and other countries. All branches of the church accept the XXXIX Articles of Religion and the Apostles' and Nicene creeds as their doctrinal symbols.

The Reformed Episcopal Church, which is represented in the United States, Canada, and England, is not in communion with any of the Anglican bodies. In the United States it is the result of a secession from the Protestant Episcopal Church.

PROTESTANT EPISCOPAL.

The beginnings of the Church of England on this continent reach back into the sixteenth century, although the Protestant Episcopal Church was not formally organized as an independent branch of the church of Christ until 1785-1789. Clergymen of the Church of England accompanied the early colonists of North Carolina across the sea, and one of them baptized an Indian chief in 1587 in a colony unsuccessfully begun by Sir Walter Raleigh, and also, 5 days later, the first white English child born on the American continent, Virginia Dare. It is very probable that the Rev. Francis Fletcher, a clergyman of the Church of England, who accompanied, as chaplain, the expedition of Sir Francis Drake to the Pacific coast, held services on California soil as early as 1579. He officiated for 6 weeks in the neighborhood of Drakes bay. In 1607 worship according to the Anglican ritual was established in the new colonies at Jamestown, Va., and Kennebec, Me. It was soon discontinued in Maine, but in Virginia it was not interrupted. An Episcopal congregation was gathered in New Hampshire in 1731, and parishes were formed in other parts of New England and the middle states in the early colonial days, Trinity parish, New York city, being constituted in 1693, and Christ Church parish, in Philadelphia, in 1695. The church became the established church in New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, South Carolina, and Georgia. In Virginia, for a considerable period, no other form of worship was tolerated. In Massachusetts, on the other hand, the Anglican service was not allowed until liberty for it was secured by royal proclamation in 1662. The Episcopal Church received considerable assistance from England, particularly from the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, organized in 1701, which sent over many missionaries. It is said that at the beginning of the Revolutionary war the society was maintaining about 80 missionaries in the colonies.

At the close of the struggle resulting in American independence many of the parishes were without ministerial oversight. The clergymen had left the country during the war, returning to England or going north to the British provinces. In Virginia, where, at the outbreak of the war, there had been 164 churches and chapels and 91 clergymen, it was found in 1784 that 95 parishes were either extinct or forsaken, and that only 28 clergymen remained. At a conference of clergymen and laymen from New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania held in New Brunswick, N. J., in May, 1784, steps were taken to form "a continental representation of the Episcopal Church". In the following October a convention representing Delaware and Maryland, in addition to the three states above named, assembled in New York city, and resolved to "recommend to the clergy and congregations of their communion" that "there be a general convention of the Episcopal Church"; that the first meeting of the convention be held in Philadelphia in September, 1785, and that clerical and lay deputies be appointed by the Episcopal churches in the several states, "duly instructed and authorized" to take part in its deliberations. At the convention of 1785 a committee was appointed to draft a constitution, to prepare such alterations in the liturgy as were necessary, and to report a plan for securing the consecrations of bishops. All of these matters were considered by the committee, and the convention acted upon the several reports it made. The first Episcopal consecration was that of Bishop Seabury, of Connecticut, which took place in Aberdeen, Scotland, in 1784, the Scottish bishops officiating. In 1787 Drs. William White and Samuel Provoost were consecrated bishops in London by the Archbishop of Canterbury. The consecration of Bishop Seabury was recognized by the general convention of 1789, and the church was thus fully organized and fully equipped with bishops of the Scottish and English succession, a constitution, a general convention, and a prayer book. When the general convention of 1792 was held it was estimated that there were in this country about 200 clergymen. The church developed quite slowly until after the first quarter of the present century. The clerical list reported at the convention of 1832 contained nearly 600 names; 3 years later it had swelled to 763, and in 1838 it reached 951. In the next 30 years this number was considerably more than doubled. The church now has 51 dioceses and 13 missionary jurisdictions, besides 5 missionary jurisdictions in foreign lands. The number of its bishops is 75.

The doctrinal symbols of the Protestant Episcopal Church are the Apostles' and Nicene creeds, together with the 39 articles of the Church of England, slightly altered.

The legislative authority of the church is vested in a general convention which meets triennially. The convention consists of 2 houses, the house of bishops and the house of clerical and lay deputies. The deputies are elected by diocesan conventions. Every diocese, regardless of the number of clergymen and communicants within its bounds, is entitled to 8 deputies, 4 clerical and 4 lay. The concurrence of both orders in the house of deputies and the consent of both houses are necessary to the enactment of legislation. The general convention has the power to adopt, alter, or repeal canons pertaining to the regulation of the general affairs of the church, to ratify measures for the erection of new dioceses, and to make alterations in the constitution and Book of Common Prayer, under certain restrictions. It is the supreme legislative, executive, and judicial power. The legislation of the general convention is in the form of canons, which are arranged under 4 titles: "(1) of the orders in the ministry and of the doctrine and worship of the church; (2) of discipline; (3) of the organized bodies and officers of the church; (4) miscellaneous provisions".

There is in each diocese a convention consisting of the clergy and representatives of the laity. The bishop of the diocese is the presiding officer. The diocesan convention has power to provide by legislation for such diocesan matters as are not regulated by the general canons of the church. The unit of the diocese is the parish, with its rector, church wardens, vestrymen, and congregation. The vestrymen are the trustees and hold the property for the corporations. The wardens, of whom there are usually 2, represent the body of the parish, and have charge of the records, collect the alms, and look after the repairs of the church. Vestry meetings to be valid require the presence of at least 1 warden. The rector, who must be a priest, presides, and has exclusive direction of the spiritual affairs of the church.

Three orders are recognized in the ministry: bishops, priests, and deacons. A bishop is elected by the diocesan convention, and consecrated by bishops, after consent has been given by the standing committees of the various dioceses and by the bishops. He licenses lay readers, ordains deacons and priests, administers the rite of confirmation to members, institutes rectors, and is required to visit every parish in his diocese at least once in 3 years.

The number of organizations is 5,019, of church edifices 5,019, and the church property valued at $81,220,317. Worship is also held in 312 halls, etc., with an aggregate seating capacity of 28,007. There are in all 532,054 communicants. Of these, New York reports the largest number, 127,218, among the states. Pennsylvania comes second, with 54,720; New Jersey third, with 30,103; Massachusetts fourth, with 26,855. The church is represented in all the states and territories except Indian territory. The largest diocese is that of New York, with 53,593 communicants. Pennsylvania comes second, with 33,459; Maryland third, with 28,273; and Massachusetts fourth, with 26,855.

REFORMED EPISCOPAL.

This body was organized in 1873. Bishop Cummins, of Kentucky, withdrew from the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal Church that year, in consequence of certain criticisms which had been uttered respecting his participation in a union communion service in connection with the sixth conference of the Evangelical Alliance. Bishop Cummins met, in December, 1873, with 7 clergymen and 20 laymen in the city of New York, and it was resolved to inaugurate a separate movement. Bishop Cummins was chosen presiding officer of the new church, and the Rev. C. E. Cheney, D. D., of Chicago, was elected bishop, and subsequently consecrated by Bishop Cummins. A declaration of principles was adopted setting forth the views of the new body respecting doctrine, polity, worship, and discipline. These principles were as follows:

1. The Reformed Episcopal Church, holding "the faith once delivered unto the saints", declares its belief in the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments as the word of God, and the sole rule of faith and practice; in the creed "commonly called the Apostles' Creed"; in the divine institution of the sacraments of baptism and the Lord's Supper; and in the doctrines of grace substantially as they are set forth in the 39 Articles of Religion.

2. This church recognizes and adheres to episcopacy, not as of divine right, but as a very ancient and desirable form of church polity.

3. This church, retaining a liturgy which shall not be imperative or repressive of freedom in prayer, accepts the Book of Common Prayer, as it was revised, proposed, and recommended for use by the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church A. D. 1785, reserving full liberty to alter, abridge, enlarge, and amend the same, as may seem most conducive to the edification of the people, "provided that the substance of the faith be kept entire".

4. This church condemns and rejects the following erroneous and strange doctrines as contrary to God's word:

First. That the church of Christ exists only in one order or form of ecclesiastical polity.

Second. That christian ministers are "priests" in another sense than that in which all believers are "a royal priesthood".

Third. That the Lord's table is an altar on which the oblation of the body and blood of Christ is offered anew to the Father.

Fourth. That the presence of Christ in the Lord's Supper is a presence in the elements of bread and wine.

Fifth. That regeneration is inseparably connected with baptism.

At a general council of the Reformed Episcopal Church, held at Chicago, Ill., in May, 1874, articles of religion were adopted, 35 in number. They follow closely the Anglican articles of religion, with such changes as are indicated by the principles adopted in 1873. At the same meeting of the general council a revised Book of Common Prayer was also adopted. The church recognizes but 2 orders in the ministry, that of presbyter and that of deacon. It holds that the episcopate is not an order but an office, the bishop being simply first presbyter. The bishops do not constitute a separate house in the general council as in the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church. They preside over synods or jurisdictions, which correspond more or less closely to dioceses and jurisdictions of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

The Reformed Episcopal Church has 83 organizations, 84 church edifices, church property valued at $1,615,101, and 8,455 communicants. It is represented in 12 states, including Virginia and South Carolina, and it has 2 synods and 3 missionary jurisdictions.
